The Point of Wolves in Stormy Profile

Editor's Window

Conversation is supposed to be an art, and most people approach it as if it were: with little talent, no imagination and a relentless will to overwhelm the subject.

This is the same way in which painters attack a barn door, and that's why canvasses rather than barn doors are hung in museums.

What is frequently mistaken for conversation is usually just a lot of social talking which serves no end other than as a substitute for silence.

Social talking is verbal bowing and scraping, an oral handshake, a loud and trivial ornament in our assortment of good manners. And, like good manners, it serves the highly useful purpose of preventing others from satisfying their curiosity about us.

This banal ritual is composed largely of illogical and frequently unintelligible cliches or figures of speech, which can be strung to—

COLLEGE BOARD COOLS OFF FIGHT

A truce, not a triumph, seems implicit in a statement made this morning by trustees of the Monterey Peninsula College regarding the grave and formal charges of certain faculty members against Fred Huber, president of the College and superintendent of the District.

Presented to a meeting of the faculty and administration by trustee Mark Raggett of Carmel, the statement announced the decision of the Board that Huber's position will remain unchanged.

The statement continued, "It is evident there are areas in the organizational structure of the college in need of change and the Board assures you of our intention to proceed in that direction."

"We request," it thereafter concluded, "the full cooperation of the faculty and administration in the solution of our problems in the best interest of the college and the students we are here to serve."

SCALP HUNTING

This has been a genuine scalp-hunting campaign on the part of disgruntled faculty members who, through chairman Ronald Menmuir of the professional relations committee, have charged Huber with indecision, arbitrariness, and lethargic leadership. Huber, in response, has replied to the Board that he has consistently conformed his actions to Board policies; that he has not been indecisive and that his leadership has been as resourceful as conditions permitted.

The Board's decision not to dismiss Huber, which his opponents had hoped they would do, must therefore seem a rebuff to them. On the other hand, only the most optimistic could read into the rather aloof remarks of the Board an expression of determined confidence.

GO AWAY SOMEWHERE

The gentle and faintly admonitory tones of the Board statement indicates a fond wish that the whole matter would go away somewhere and disappear, an unlikely event under the circumstance. At one time a board member expressed his belief that the unsavory and humid mess would be dispersed only after Huber, or half the faculty, quit.

If Huber, the Board, and the fuming members of the faculty can—

Planners Yank Five-Story Ladder From Under Junipero Cliff Dwellers

A massive redefinition of the eastern skyline of Junipero Avenue north of Sixth Avenue was forestalled yesterday, for the time being at least, when the Planning Commission, on a 4-2 vote (Josselyn, Martin, von Meier, Keeble, aye — Smith, Willox, no), adopted a report of its Design Review Committee disapproving plans for a 240-foot long addition to the Jade Tree Motel. The plans, prepared by Comstock Associates, were struck down because, in the words of the committee report, "the design is not in keeping with the village character . . . It is an out-of-scale development."

The problem is not altogether one of Comstock Associates' making. The site, behind the Jade Tree and fronting on Torres Street, is perhaps 30 feet higher than the Junipero Street level; therefore, any finished construction would give the appearance from Junipero of a complex five stories in height extending interminably north and south.

The Commission, in a 90-minute wrangle, indicated that the designers would have to do something to relieve the unimaginative monotony of unbroken planes, hoping perhaps that a counter-illusion—

I gazed on the pettish Pacific, and visioned the fishers of yore who searched the snide sea with a fisherman's glee for the ebullient albacore.

So down to the deep in a dory went I with a will and away to catch the quick cod with a line and a rod where the porpoise and halibut play.

There's folks who forget fish can figure—I learned this too, little, too late. I sat there all night with not even a bite, while they nibbled a bale of my bait.

The moral of this little saga—the shopkeeper sticks to his store. My kippers I plan to impinge from a can, and admire the Pacific from shore.

Trucking Troubles

Relief for motorists entangled in the truck-created snarls on Carmel's downtown street may not be easy to accomplish. It hasn't proven easy anywhere else.

The problem stems from the discriminatory provisions of the California Vehicle Code, which flings a broad blanket of immunity on the licensing, movement and standing still of delivery trucks. The law is discriminatory because it requires everyone to park at the curb, except commercial vehicles (Sec. 22502). The law is discriminatory because it prohibits local ordinances which would restrict free access and movement of trucks on city streets (Sec. 35703). And it is discriminatory as well on the powers of the city to require delivery licenses. Delivery licenses are in fact taxes, and they are levied because of the great cost of regulating truck traffic, the considerable wear and damage their great weights inflict on streets. But many classifications escape the tax through discriminatory laws that place them beyond the reach of equitable taxation, even though the same laws don't prevent them from contributing to the inequity of the problem.

Police Chief Clyde Klaumann, disposing his limited forces as best he can, moves wherever possible against flagrant violations. "But we can't do anything about them when we don't see them, or somebody doesn't tell us about it. Whenever we know of a driver who breaks the continuity of delivery, like stopping for coffee, for instance, we move him out."

The department's dilemma suggests two measures to help tidy up the scene: motorists and merchants should quickly notify the police of observed circumstances—such as in the upper picture—and the City could provide more policemen. Both measures are in certain ways inconvenient. But so is the problem for which they are antidotes. Probably the strongest remedy is public indignation, which can be a pretty relentless and impartial lash when it commences to crack about. It may be that Carmelites have grown too lethargic, too indifferent to community matters, too used to inconveniences. If this is so, they deserve the trucker's contempt for them.

There are about 150 delivery licenses presently in force for the city. Allowing for those categories exempted, perhaps as many as 200 trucks lumber along the streets, many of them every day. To accommodate them there are only 16 loading zones, and these are not uniformly distributed. This is the major grumble of the truckers, which nevertheless becomes immaterial when the numerous instances of parking spaces disregarded by truckers is considered. It seems not so much to be a matter of spaces available as it is of available spaces being used. In this respect, the truckers have no defense.

As summer approaches, the confusion and menace of trucks sprawled contemptuously all over the street, obstructing traffic and making the motorist's progress doubtful as well as irritating looms with ominous importance. As one safety official puts it, "One of these days, we're going to have a fire or an accident, and because of a couple of trucks in the middle of the street, we won't be able to get anywhere near it. Then watch the fur fly."

THIS IS THE CONDITION—On Dolores street, a delivery truck stands contemptuously in the middle of the street while two truck-loading zones go unused at the curb. The plea that vacancies occur while the driver is inside a store holds no water in this and many similar instances. It is just too much work to pull in out of the way, courtesy and thoughtfulness apparently having no commercial value.

THIS IS THE RESULT—Another traffic jam in the making. These two cars will shortly meet head-on, neither will be able to pass the other, and as more cars come on the scene, nobody will be able to move. Solution? Not necessary. If the truck had been at the curb, there would have been no problem, and nothing to solve.

THE COURTS

City Wins

Murray Metzenbaum is apparently going to lose his Superior Court suit to compel the City to rescind a use permit issued last year to Anita Doud and her sister, Kathleen Watson, allowing the division of property on Scenic drive near Ocean avenue into three building sites.

Judge Anthony Brazil has advised attorneys in the case that he will rule for the defendant city, thus sustaining the permit, and has asked that City Attorney John Morse file findings in fact upon which the judgment will be based.

Metzenbaum's attorney, Donald Smith, stated yesterday that he will appeal Brazil's decision "at once, as soon as it is handed down."

A very large issue has been resolved by the decision. For years the city has not looked upon private easements as reducing the size of building sites, and many permits have been issued under this interpretation.

Smith primarily based his case upon the alleged invalidity of such an arrangement, claiming that public and private easements were indistinguishable. Apparently, Brazil could tell the difference.

HEALTH

Emergencies

The boards and the presidents of the medical staffs of the Community and the Monterey hospitals last Saturday advocated the establishment of an emergency center for medical aid, staffed 24 hours a day by doctors and nurses whose only duties would be to render emergency care.

With 3,396 emergency patients treated by the two hospitals last year, and the population growing, the conclusion has been reached that the resources of the two hospitals are unable to handle the load; furthermore, immediate attention by doctors under the present voluntary rotation system is not always possible, although about 50% of the time a doctor is already at the hospital when the patient arrives.

The proposal was general. Addressed to "the public" it did not suggest a means of accomplishment, and was probably issued with the hope that some public agency, or possibly a combination, would pick up the bandages and run with them.

SCHOOLS

Sunset To City?

A three-man committee has tentatively agreed that it would be to the best advantage to replace Sunset School with a new elementary structure adjacent to Carmel Junior High School. The group also suggested that a survey be made to determine the opinions of parents of Sunset pupils.

Board member George Yates reported on the work of the committee, which also includes Trustee Clayton Neill, Jr. and District Superintendent Stuart Mitchell. It was recommended that the Carmel City Council be contacted to ascertain if it would be interested in purchasing the school. Meanwhile, a study would be made of other possible ways of disposing of all or part of the Sunset facilities.

The three men will continue their efforts along these lines. This does not mean that Sunset will not be in operation during the next semester, although it could mean that some activities there would be curtailed.

Rumors are being circulated that school board spokesmen have already met with city council members for informal discussion. The question of the Sunset future may not much longer hover below the horizon.

BUSINESS

Highlands Phones

The suburban telephone service classification is going to be withdrawn for the approximately 200 subscribers in the Carmel Highlands service area of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company. An opinion and order adopted by the Public Utilities Commission on 19 March, has approved the application and ordered the company to file revised rates on or before 1 November. The Company says it will do so by September.

The new rates will be equivalent to Carmel base rates. For residences, the 1-party base rates will rise from $4.90 per month to $5.40. For 1-party business lines, the rate will increase from a $9.75 per month to $10.25. Because of technicalities involved in the changes, about five individual and party line subscribers will have their mileage charges reduced or eliminated.

PT & T Co. estimates that the change will reduce revenue for the exchange by approximately $4,300 annually.

Hearings were not held. The Commission, in its opinion, found them unnecessary.

EVENTS

Hi Fliers

A week from Saturday Carmel's justly famous annual Kite Festival, a project of the Carmel Lion's Club, will be held at the Carmel Junior High School.

The move from the senior high school was accomplished in search for more reliable winds. In years past some skittish breezes, and occasionally some winds notorious because of their absence, have made the event a problem of getting anything off the ground besides distraught eight-year-old contestants. And their fathers.

The event has considerable local historical significance, and in its present manifestation is largely the inspiration of the late, beloved Ernest Calley, who taught for years at Sunset School.

Contests begin at 1:30 p.m. for the numerous prizes which will be sought by perhaps six hundred contestants, all competing with kites of their own construction, which is one of the few regulations of the picturesque occasion.

Science Fair

Two Carmel students, one at the high school and one at the junior high school, will exhibit projects in the Tri-County Science Fair, which will open tomorrow at the Cabrillo College, Aptos, near Santa Cruz, to continue for three days.

Jeff McKenna, a senior, will show a physics project dealing with sound transmission in a vacuum. For this he has done independent work and research, under the guidance of Mr. John Westover, physics instructor.

Hazel Jacoby, a ninth grader, and a biology pupil of Mrs. Antoinette Graham, will show a project entitled, "The Ballistic Penetration of Woods."

Students in kindergarten through twelfth grades in Monterey, Santa Cruz, and San Benito Counties have entered 240 exhibits in the fair, which will be open to the public from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. tomorrow; 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Saturday; and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., Sunday.

Doctors, scientists and engineers in all fields of biological and physical science will judge the exhibits on Thursday and Friday, but winners will not be announced and awards will not be presented until Saturday morning. Grand prize will be a trip to Albuquerque, New Mexico, for a chance to compete in the National Science Fair.

BASEBALL

Help!

Frank Timmins has broadcast a call for help. There seems to be no lack of players for the Little League and its allied leagues, but there is an aching need for a parental sign-up to help with the chores in and about the ball park. Timmins' request for adult help ranges from post-hole diggers to foul line painters, with the ubiquitous umpire (called empire) always in demand.

Announcers, scorekeepers, managers and coaches, to name a few, are needed.

Connie Mack

The Connie Mack League of the Monterey Peninsula, with teams hailing from Monterey, Seaside, Salinas and Fort Ord, has an opening for another club, and it has been agreed that the players will be supplied from the Carmel Unified School District.

George Thaler, manager of Carmel's Babe Ruth League team, says that more than half of the money required for first year operations has already been raised.

By Jack
Morris

With firm commitments of $500 in hand, an additional $300 is needed.

Carmel and the Peninsula has little to offer except baseball to the 16 to 18 year-old sports-minded boy, and without a team of their own, approximately 30 boys who graduate from the Babe Ruth League each year find their summer baseball activity ended.

Thaler goes on to say that new financial blood is needed, as the supporters of the Little League, Pony League, and Babe Ruth League feel that they are doing all they can. The Carmel entrant will also need a manager and coach.

Pony League

Pony League tryouts for the coming season will be held on the field at Carmel Junior High, Saturday, 30 March, from ten a.m. to one p.m. Max Feuerman will be bossing the works but there is a great need for young coaches and assistants from the local high schools to take charge of the various groups. So fall in, fellows, and lend a hand. You will be doing a great favor at little time and expense.

GOLF

Putting Stance

Edgar Haber, entrepreneur of the Green Meadows Golf Course in Carmel Valley, is confined to the Peninsula Community Hospital with an injured back.

With the way he has been putting lately, it is the consensus of his golfing opponents that the injury was incurred by the repetitious exercise of picking the ball out of the cup after holing so many ten-footers.

A Way Of Life

Same old music from the politicians to get the name before the public. A man whose business was fighting and whose ringside reputation was that of a rough, tough brawler whose out-of-the-ring record was that of a sanguinary character on Spring Street, died in a ringside accident in an officially designated championship prize fight.

This was an accident. Not like the Max Baer-Frankie Campbell thing in San Francisco, when the referee permitted Baer to batter Campbell's head against the ring

HIGH-FLYING action marks the consolation finals of last weekend's annual Monterey Peninsula Rugby Tournament. In this contest, the USC Trojans defeated the University Club of Los Angeles (6 to 3) for third place in the two-day, 16-team tournament.

ANTICIPATING A BETTER FATE than that which finally befell them, members and supporters of the Katz Club of Vancouver, B.C., relax before the championship match, in which Stanford University slaughtered the Canadians by the hideous score of 22 - 0. In seven out of the last 11 years, the Katz Club has been British Columbia champions, but there was little in their performance against a potent Stanford club to indicate this.

STANFORD COACH Pete Kmetovic, Pamela Gamble (Miss California) and Stanford Captain Bob Price, laugh gleefully over mud and victory which brought the Stanfords the golden trophy being offered by Pamela to Price. Stanford has now won the trophy twice.

BEER IS A NATURAL

From nature's light grain comes sparkling, light beer... California's traditional beverage of moderation—it's light, sparkling, delicious.

Letters . . . to The Editor

RED LIGHTS

Dear Larry:

You may recall that following the Saturday Evening Post story of Adlai Stevenson's role in the Cuban crisis, he said that accuracy is to a newspaper what virtue is to a lady. He also pointed out the one difference: A newspaper can always print a retraction.

It is with that thought in mind that I am writing you. I have at hand a newspaper clipping from a recent edition of the Pine Cone Cymbal. I have attached a copy. In it, you will note that the legislation to standardize lights on emergency vehicles is said to be the result of "the zeal of Senator Fred Farr." This measure, Senate Bill 357, was not sponsored by me but by Senator L. M. Backstrand (Republican—Riverside County).

Despite the fact that your editorial writer had more passion for economy than for accuracy, my curiosity was nevertheless aroused by the extraordinary statement that it would cost in the neighborhood of $1,500,000 for standardizing lights on emergency vehicles. I checked this out with the Division of Highways, and while they had made no official estimate of cost, they nevertheless feel that Fire Chief Bob Smith's guess is far too high.

As for your claim that the cost of replacing lights is an unnecessary expenditure, officials at the Division of Highways point out that even lights on private passenger cars must meet minimum standards of candle power and beam pattern. Thus, it is only reasonable to require that emergency vehicles meet minimum standards for clearance lights and particularly for the steady burning red light. Ambulances, police cars, and fire trucks race at high speeds through our public streets, and it is only a commonplace of prudence to minimize the risk of accidents. One way of doing this is to make certain that warning lights are adequate. Prior to enactment of Senator Backstrand's bill, the only requirement was that the steady burning red light be visible at a distance of 500 feet. Even a lighted match has sufficient candle power to be seen at that distance.

These arguments may not sway your opinion, but I do feel you should take steps to inform your readers that I did not sponsor the bill.

Sincerely,
FRED S. FARR

(EDITOR'S COMMENT: Accuracy in a newspaper is a habit, learned by committing many mistakes. I had no idea that this was the way in which ladies learned virtue. How formidable. How intriguing.

Now, while you ponder this, let me assure you that we have learned our lesson reasonably well. When our reporter was told that you had sponsored the Red Light bill our fever for accuracy overwhelmed us. We called your Carmel office and spoke with your legal secretary who referred us to your legislative secretary who advised us that the information was not obtainable locally and that she would have to "check Sacramento." Shortly thereafter she called back and told us that you had indeed sponsored the bill.

This raises some interesting possibilities about who should retract what.

As for whether or not the estimate of $1,500,000 is an accurate estimate of the cost of converting the lights on every emergency vehicle—fire truck ambulances, police vehicles, emergency service vehicles, etc.—I think you will agree that the estimate is only as accurate as the authority, and I am content to ride with the knowl-

We did not say that the cost was unwarranted or unnecessary. We merely said that it was expensive, just like virtue.

This doesn't leave much to retract, either for us or the ladies, does it?

CONSIDER MORE CAREFULLY
Dear Sir:

You have made some very unfavorable comments on Burt Talcott, our new Congressman, in your issue of March 1, 1963, which, in my opinion, are certainly unwarranted. No one is immune from criticism, and Congressmen are no exceptions; but, in this case, I believe you are quite hasty in making the derogatory comments on Talcott in respect to the tax reduction and reform proposal as being complex and controversial. The overwhelming majority of economists agree that investment capital is basic in providing jobs for more people.

The present bill, which is a disappointment to so many people throughout the country, is geared solely toward consumer purchasing power, rather than lending emphasis to providing investment capital. On the other hand, the large increase in the new budget proposed by the President is not a cure for the unemployment that we have, because increases in Government spending will not produce the long term corrective action to make more jobs at the cost of not providing the additional investment capital.

Your article on Talcott was not in good taste; not only because you were wrong about Mr. Talcott in this instance, but also because it was a backhanded slap at your friend and investor in the newspaper, George Walker, who spent many hours as the campaign manager for Mr. Talcott. I wonder if you have ever thought about this. I hope the next time you write, you will consider more carefully your words before you print them in your paper. Very truly yours,

WALLACE F. GETZ

(EDITOR'S COMMENT: I hope that next time you, too, Mr. Getz, will consider my words more carefully. My remarks about Congressman Talcott, whom I support with an enthusiasm apparently exceeded only by yours, were directed at a statement he had made, not at a position he had taken. As a matter of fact, Talcott was attempting to say that he had not yet determined on a position on this particular bill. In this respect he is evidently far behind you, probably because he is Washington, D.C., where things are notoriously more obscure than in Pacific Grove.

Talcott's remarks were unintentionally—and unnecessarily—banal. We all know that the bill is complex and controversial; we all know that it is an important measure; and we all know that he will need to study the measure before he can reach an intelligent opinion concerning it. If he had been content to say, "I haven't had enough time to study it thoroughly," he would have had my applause, not my criticism, for displaying the candor which I know he usually possesses. I was merely voicing a hope that Burt was not succumbing to that attractive affliction which inflames all politicians at one time or another: saying nothing for the sake of saying something.

You have, therefore, sir, missed the point altogether when you assume that my comments were intended to be applicable to the bill itself.

As for your observation regarding my partner, George Walker, please be advised that there is only ONE editor of this newspaper. Mr. Walker, and others, invested in a business, not in the management of the editorial policies, judgments, observation or conscience of the editor. That requires not only a considerable amount of faith and a sense of proportion, but a great deal of humor as well.

BIG IN WASHINGTON is Congressman Burt L. Talcott, shown recently talking to a visiting fireman, Councilman Herbert B. Blanks, who was on temporary military duty in Washington, D.C., with the Inspector General's office of the U. S. Army. Major (for the time being) Blanks and Talcott spent a couple of hours discussing affairs in general. Blanks reported Talcott as saying, "When I was a Supervisor in Monterey County, and something needed doing, it was usually possible to do it. Now, I not only find it more difficult to get it done, I can't even find out how it is done." But not for long. Refreshing Burt Talcott will lick anything with a smile like that. (And now, Mr. Getz, let's talk about taxes.)

Spring Concert

The Monterey Peninsula College Chorus and The College Singers will stage their annual spring concert on Sunday at 4 p.m. in the First Presbyterian Church, Monterey.

Under the direction of Dr. Harvey Marshall, MPC music department chairman, and Miss Angie Machado, instructor, the 70-voice chorus will present "Magnificat in G" by Marc-Antoine Charpentier (circa 1634-1704); "In Ecclesiis," a sacred symphony composed by Giovanni Gabrieli (1556-1612); and "Te Deum," by Franz Joseph Haydn (1732-1809).

London In Carmel

George London, well known bass-baritone, will appear in concert at Sunset School auditorium at 8:30 p.m., Wednesday, under the auspices of the Carmel Music Society.

London's starring performances at Bayreuth, the Vienna State Opera, Salzburg and the Metropolitan Opera of New York include most of the great singing roles of Italian, German, French and Russian opera.

Tickets are available at Graham Music Company, or by telephoning MA 4-2085.

Swiss Mime

At the annual meeting of the Community Theatre, this evening at 8 in the Golden Bough Circle Theatre, the noted Swiss mime, Jan Kessler, will present a program of pantomimes. Accompanied on the harmonium by his wife, Dora Kessler, he will offer a selection from his performances at the Seattle World's Fair, the Dallas Theatre Center, and in Europe.

The meeting will be open to all members of the Community Theatre, as well as to persons wishing to join. Annual dues, payable at the door, include a season ticket to plays at the Circle Theatre.

Studio Plays

Mystery and suspense will take the stage at The Studio Restaurant and Theatre with the forthcoming production of William Fairchild's mystery-drama, "The Sound of Murder." The play, which contains several added twists to the "who done it" mystery format, will begin its run on Friday, 5 April.

The current production of Noel Coward's hilarious comedy, "Fallen Angels," starring Betty Fowlston and Ruth McElroy, will have its final performances on Friday, Saturday and Sunday of this week.

PAINTING

Art Association

A new show will open at the Carmel Art Association Galleries on 3 April. Chairman of the hanging committee is Jane Buffington.

The next meeting of the board of directors will be held on Monday, 8 April.

West Show

During the month of April, Carmel painter Barbara West will have a one-man show of her paintings at the Purple Edge Gallery in Felton, near Santa Cruz.

Children's Workshop

The American Federation of Arts will sponsor a Saturday morning workshop for children aged six through nine, beginning 6 April and continuing for 10 sessions, with the exception of 13 April. Alex Gonzales will conduct the workshop with classes in several media, including painting and papier-mache, in Room 17 (bungalow), Sunset School. Tuition is payable in advance, and further information may be obtained by telephoning the AFA Gallery, MA 4-2918.

ARCHITECTURE

AIA Awards

Photographs, plans and scale models illustrating 30 award-winning buildings designed by Northern California architects and completed since 1957 are on display at the M. H. de Young Memorial Museum through 15 April.

Winners selected from 230 entries submitted in the 1963 Bay Region Honor Awards Program, sponsored by the Northern California and East Bay chapters of the American Institute of Architects, include the Carmel Junior High School (merit award), designed by Elstort and Cranston, Carmel, and Kump Associates, Palo Alto; the Donald Goodhue residence (merit award) in Carmel Knolls, designed by Hall and Goodhue, Monterey; and the Peninsula Community Hospital (citation award), designed by Edward Durell Stone. The hospital was also the winner of a national honor award, 1957-63, by the A.I.A.

WRITING

Success In Person

John Woolfenden, publicity director for "Lawrence of Arabia" spoke last week to members and guests of Mrs. Maxine Shore's Carmel Adult School class, Writing for Publication, relating experiences in Arabia and Spain during filming of the picture, which is already nominated for a host of Motion Picture Academy awards, including best picture of the year.

The former Sunday editor of the Los Angeles Times, and later assistant head of publicity for Columbia pictures, is a prolific author in his own right, having written over 300 articles over the past two years for publication in the United States, Canada and England. From his wealth of successful experience he advised the student writers to present ideas for articles to editors in person whenever possible.

Skilled Greek artisans developed methods of working with clay that made Athens the pottery and ceramic center of the Mediterranean area from the seventh to the fourth century B. C.

ART COLONY LOSES A VALUED MEMBER

The art colony of Monterey Peninsula was shocked to learn of the death last Monday in this city of Thomas Shrewsbury Parkhurst.

STANFORD GLEE CLUB ENTERTAINS CARMEL

The Stanford Glee Club were on the Peninsula for only three days, but were a busy bunch. On Friday night they gave their Carmel concert, followed by a dance; on Saturday a swim in Carmel bay, and that night a concert at Del Monte, with another Terpsichorean session; on Sunday a picnic at Point Lobos all day and at night a sacred concert in the Pacific Grove Methodist Church.

The concert and stunts were pretty much the same as last year. It is to be hoped there will be an entire new change of program next year.

Dosvydanya

By Valentine Miller

In the rain, we followed a group of housewives and mothers, the Monterey Peninsula Women for Peace, out to Carmel Highlands Saturday morning to meet the four women from Soviet Russia, who charmed everyone they met during their Monterey Peninsula visit last week.

By pre-arrangement, Mrs. Galatin Powers and Mrs. Mark Thomas, local representatives of the Committee for Friendly International Visits, had driven their guests to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Laidlaw Williams, set among the pines on a high hill, for a late breakfast smorgasbord.

Arriving at the door a little late, we followed the good smell of hot coffee and bacon, and the buzz of lively conversation (all in English), into the big living room.

First we eavesdropped on a group near the piano. Madame Yelena Dmitrieva, with delicately aquiline features, chairman of the English department at the Academy of Sciences of the USSR in Moscow, was discussing American literature. "I am a great admirer of Hemingway, Steinbeck and Dreiser; and, of another generation, Edgar Poe. 'The Catcher in the Rye,' by Salinger, I have read both in English and in the Russian translation, and I think it is excellent. . . In Russian it is compulsory for all students to have a reading and speaking knowledge of another language."

Near the French doors another group, including one or two teenagers, was sitting on the floor listening to Madame Valentina Rogova, a mechanical engineer and director of vocational schools for the Tatar Republic. "Do you not think," she was earnestly asking, while the girls looked wide-eyed at her pretty face (a real Russian Communist was talking to them!), "that it is important for every wife to be a scholar, to be able to talk intelligently to her husband about art, music, literature?"

"To have a career? It is important for a woman to be a person, you know. In Russia all the young women have jobs; but that is partly because we lost over 20 million people in the second World War, so women have had to fill the men's places."

The French doors opened on a wide deck, and the sun had broken through the rain clouds. We went outside to join the group around Dr. Galina Ilyinskaya, who seemed entranced with the view of Point Lobos. "This is paradise," she exclaimed, her arms spread wide. "Our Crimea is like this—the sea, the pines, the oak trees." She turned back to continue a previous conversation. "Seventy percent of all teachers in Russia are women; 76 percent are doctors. On the staff of my hospital in Moscow I have 40 doctors; one of them, my second in command, is a man."

Back inside the living room, we listened in on an animated conversation by the fireplace. A strong voice was saying, "Women are the force for peace. Yes, perhaps women should take over the world!" This was Madame Olga Tchetchetkina, Pravda journalist.

As Mrs. Powers and Mrs. Thomas prepared to take their guests on to further Peninsula engagements, there was a sudden rush of warm hand-clasps, of addresses exchanged, of affectionate farewells. "Come back to Carmel. Come and see us in Russia. . . Good-by, good-by! . . . Dosvydanya!"

"if not, the fatal blow between opponents may be struck." . . . Wynn Bullock, well known photographer, judged the photography contest of the PADRE TRAILS CAMERA CLUB last Thursday night. Meeting place of the club has been changed to the lecture hall, Room 6, at Carmel High School.

CARMEL WOMEN'S DEMOCRATIC CLUB announces its Easter bazaar, scheduled on Thursday at the Masonic Hall. HOUSE on Wednesday, Dr. Hanna Lohnberg will show pictures of the first part of her trip around the world — Hawaii, Japan, Hong Kong, Thailand, Bali, Ceylon, and India — at 1:30 p.m., and again at 3 p.m. The monthly luncheon will be on 8 April, followed by a showing of colored slides of local wild flowers presented by W. P. Anthony of Carmel Valley.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

By ALESA SMITH

Girl Scout Troop 63 had a "driftwood contest" recently after going to the beach the week before. Mrs. DeForest Sweeney, assistant leader, showed the girls what could be done with driftwood. Three prizes were awarded. Cara Coniglio won for the prettiest; she used a figurine on a piece of wood, with pearls behind it. Grey Zimmerman had the funniest. Hers had three knobs of wood mounted on a piece of wood. It was called "The Jury". Linda McCormick had the most original. She used a twisty piece of wood with a feather on it. She called it "The Ostrich." Alesa Smith and Janis Woodfield won honorable mention with a miniature sailboat and a desert scene. The prizes were campcraft books.

Mr. Neil Smith, outdoor chairman, takes the troop on hikes once a month. Mrs. Harold Willis accompanies the troop.

The troop has been working on second class requirements and has learned the following skills: tree and flower recognition, folk dancing, first aid, fire building, care and use of knife, knot-tying and songs.

The girls passed their fire building and foil cooking in a drizzling rain on the Carmel beach. They managed to cook their food on their own fires.

The troop is working on the Highland Fling for the Girl Scout Dance Festival, 28 April. They will make their costumes under the direction of Mrs. Fred Zimmerman, assistant leader.

From A Librarian's Notebook

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

Mark Twain On the Damned Human Race is a book of selections from the writings of Mark Twain. Some of them were never published before and some are reprinted from other collections. The book, edited by Janet Smith, is small but nevertheless it contains a wealth of wit and wisdom.

Lee Sheridan is a free lance writer who lives in New York and loves to cook. At the suggestion of a friend, he began compiling favorite recipes with the idea of doing a book for men cooks who either want to cook or are forced by circumstances to work a miracle in a ship's galley. The book is called Bachelor's Cookbook, but the library will be happy to loan it to married men. . . or even to women, yet! The recipes look good.

Hong Kong, the name of that city of legendary charm and excitement, is the title of a book by Gene Gleason. The author describes the city as it is today, filled with masses of refugees from Red China, more than a million of whom have taken up residence there. Hong Kong is a prosperous city, more so than ever before in its history. Illustrated with photographs, this is a book which will hold the interest of the reader.

The Truth About Rhythm by Dr. Georg is a discussion of birth control from the standpoint of the Roman Catholic church. It bears the imprimatur of the church.

A two-time winner of the Pulitzer Prize for his cartoons, Jay N. Darling was one of the country's best known cartoonists. He died in 1962 and was mourned all over the country. "Ding," as he was known, and as he signed his cartoons, was a devoted and prominent conservationist, and many of his works were aimed at furthering conservation of wild life and natural resources. All this leads up to the happy fact that the Meredith Publishing Company has recently brought out a new collection of "Ding's" best work under the title Ding's Half Century. Included here are highlights of 50 years of political cartooning. The last picture in the book is a poignant farewell from Ding to the world he loved so well. For many a chuckle and many a sigh, read Ding's Half Century.

John Masters has a new novel entitled To the Coral Strand. Once again he writes of India, this time the new India. Always, he writes well. Mr. Masters has been doing his autobiography in a series of books, and in 1961 his Road Past Mandalay, a part of this series, was published. This library ordered two copies, one for Carmel and one from the county library. On both we immediately received out-of-stock notices. Despite letters, we never received the book on either order. Two months ago we purchased a copy through Brentano's in San Francisco, exactly two years after it was published. How Brentano's was able to buy a copy we will never know. It all goes to show that purchasing books is not all beer and skittles. Sometimes it is a strange journey around many obstacles. Amen.

LAW IN ACTION

PIRACY

The colorful pirate of old captured your imagination but not that of the shipowners or the governments that lost their cargoes and treasures.

Pirates were "enemies of mankind." Their acts became crimes against that government as well as against the "law of nations." A government would try to catch and to punish them no matter how and where the piracy took place.

From these early days, a rule of international law called "the piracy principle" came into being: As to crimes against mankind. Any nation might seize and punish such a person. He did not need to be one of its citizens. The crimes could be committed inside or outside its territory. Jurisdiction is worldwide.

Nations often punish their own people for crimes beyond its borders. Nations can punish aliens for crime within their borders. They can punish aliens for crimes committed against that country when they later come into that country. A nation can also punish an alien for piracy under international law.

What about war crimes done on orders of superiors? The World War II allies have declared that certain Nazi leaders committed punishable crimes against nations.

Now and then some nations may allow a court to try a person "in absentia." Such trials without the accused present were once popular.

but little comes from such trials, and they are not as highly regarded as trials in which a person has a fair chance to defend himself.

A Brooding Memory

THESE BUILDINGS ARE IMPORTANT. Though the degree of deterioration might not lead immediately to that conclusion, their historical association certainly buttresses it. They are identified with the wraithlike and vaguely documented history of the life of Robert Louis Stevenson while residing in this area. The buildings are on the Jonathan Wright ranch, on the White Rock road, in Carmel Valley.

Robert Louis Stevenson did not belong alone to Monterey. Legend has it that he was one of the first inhabitants of Carmel, other than the Indians. But little is said of the far-ranging side trips he took, this gaunt, haunted genius of such tragic persuasions and brilliant prose.

Stevenson once visited White Rock, sometime in 1879 or 1880. In a hired horse and buggy he rode up Carmel Valley as far as what is now the Farm Center, where he stopped at Berwick Manor and sought lodging of the Berwicks.

He was invited in for dinner and rest for the night. However, Mrs. Berwick became alarmed at the ravaging cough which wracked Stevenson's lean frame, and he was asked to spend the night in the barn, where his dinner was brought to him.

The next day, he set out once again, heading up Robinson Canyon and across Francisito Flat, where towards evening, he became ill.

He got out of the buggy and lay upon the ground to rest, first unhitching the traces to allow the horse to graze along the road.

The horse wandered away, coming to the Jonathan Wright ranch, to the buildings in the picture.

Mr. Wright, finding him there dragging reins and traces, sensed trouble and walked back down the road, where he found a prostrate and exhausted Stevenson. Gently, he carried him back to the ranch. There the family nursed him for a week or so, until the intense and restless man could return to Monterey.

It was just an episode, but its melancholy memory still sits in brooding desolation beside the road to White Rock.

FOUL

The Monterey Peninsula Herald, in its Wednesday night edition, carried on the front page a very large photograph reputedly showing Princess Margaret gazing with fawning admiration on Major J. B. D. Sharp, Kings Royal Hussars, during a review of troops.

The caption is an offense against almost anyone's powers of observation and sense of proportion. Obviously, the Princess is gazing above and away from Major Sharp. Such casualness is not becoming of the competition, whose passion for accuracy, even in such intimate matters, is so well known.

California produces the major part of the nation's safflower and a substantial portion of the nation's castor beans and cottonseed.

There are about 120 different kinds of fish taken in California waters for commercial use.

Experts say that a busy housewife takes between 18,000 and 25,000 steps in one day of normal activity.

The Sur Coast

By ELIZABETH FULLER JONES

A four-day seminar, beginning today and continuing through Sunday, will be conducted at the Big Sur Hot Springs Lodge, 15 miles south of Big Sur, on Highway One, led by poet-critic Kenneth Rexroth, and Dr. Richard Marsh of San Francisco State College. The seminar is entitled: "The Evolution of Human Experience".

Dr. Marsh will present a theory about the stages of evolution of human experience since pre-historic times, and this theory will be discussed throughout the seminar. A student of many subjects, he took his Ph. D. in philosophy from the American Academy of Asian Studies, and is presently a professor of radio-television at San Francisco State College.

Mr. Rexroth is also well-suited to discuss this theory, for he has conducted broad research into the ways of primitive cultures and has been a thorough and close student of our own rapidly changing society. His subjects range from jazz to Henry Miller, from Chinese classic novels to Martin Buber. He has translated poetry from the Chinese, Japanese, French, and Spanish, and as the author of a number of collections of poetry.

Nepenthe opens 2 April for the spring and summer season, and will remain open every day except Monday until 1 November. Reservations are advisable on week ends and during the summer vacation months. Luncheon is served from 12 noon to 4:00 p.m.; dinner from 4:00 to 10:30 p.m. For reservations, phone Big Sur 5011.

With the opening, Nepenthe announces its spring series of concerts under the musical direction of Margaret Fabrizio. The first will be on Friday, 5 April, at 8:30 p.m., with music for violin, clarinet, cello and piano.

The twelfth annual Pot Luck Revue delighted audiences during its first three performances at the Big Sur Grange Hall last week end. Two more performances will be given this week end, Saturday and Sunday at 8:30 p.m. For reservations and tickets, telephone Marty Hartman at Ripplewood Lodge, Big Sur 2521.

Again this year the Revue is under the direction of Gene Perrine and Bob Skiles and the entire production is the result of the cooperative effort of the residents of Big Sur and members of the Grange. The beautiful and original costumes, stage setting, program covers, posters, hand-blocked souvenir scarfs, are all the result of the abundance of talent, joyously working together to present this yearly, memorable variety show.

Where There's Life . . .

By ANDRE HOPE

Today is F. & J. Day, otherwise known to pliers of the beachcombing trade as "flotsom and jetsam"—stuff and doo-dads that just naturally wash up on the shores from time to time. (No, Love, I am not feeling particularly washed-up today, just disorganized.) For instance, we were helping a friend to get ready for a journey, and decided to pause for a snack. Only things available in the house were the remains of a pot roast, some potato salad, and an unusually large bottle of champagne I won last holiday season at a decoration show. Ever make hash out of potato salad and pot roast with a small jar of pimiento thrown in and lashed with pot roast gravy? Pretty good—even if we did have to wash it down with champagne. Oh, I tell you, this is a hard life—ha! . . .

The friend who took off into the wild-blue-no-wonder was Harold Erickson, who went to, of all unlikely places, Vietnam. Now there's a song title for you: "When It's Spring in Vietnam, I'd Even Rather Be in L. A." . . . However, we shall have reports from this odd location from time to time which could prove rather interesting. Imagine this column having a reporter who roves farther than Trader Vic's or Nepenthe! . . .

Which leads us, somewhat illogically, to the opening of Nepenthe. As you doubtless know, April Fool's Day, 1 April, is the usual date. This year, however, as that day falls on a Monday, Nepenthe will open on Tuesday, 2 April, and we'll be there. This place is a ritual for us. In the summer we picnic, browse and rock-hound down the coast during the day, and then take ourselves to Nepenthe for good steak sandwiches, excellent company, and a gavotte or two to shake off the winter lethargies. In regard to rock-hounding, one of our favorite beaches will be off-limits to the hunters this summer. Seems too many greedy ones went at it with pick and shovel and were destroying the natural beauties at a great rate, leaving behind as a substitute a fine collection of contemporary beer cans and assorted garbage. I hope the restricting of this beach will serve as a warning. Please don't take more than you can use or need. I believe June and Jess Braucht are outstanding examples of polite amateur collectors. They are selective and make such beautiful things from their gleanings. People who have a love affair with the coast are fine indeed, but rape is another thing entirely.

Away from the coast and up the Carmel Valley, am looking forward, as always, to many pleasant days by the pool at Los Laureles Lodge. This is a lovely, relaxing place, and as I remember it, ah, the food. Feel I can always swim away the calories.

This week will be on an annual tour of the flowers of San Francisco with my mother, who is an honorary member of the Horticultural Society. She asks me to remind you that if you have flowering fruit trees, the best way to prune them is to cut them in full bloom right now so that you will have the double pleasure of enjoying them in your house. I wish I could domesticate the butterflies that are visiting mine—what an arrangement! Just had a visit from a flock of wild canaries; they looked like butter in the bamboo!

After her graduation from the University of Minnesota, she married Zenas Potter and lived in various cities in the Middle West, the East, Mexico and France before settling in Carmel in 1938, where she has continued to live since her husband's death in 1958.

Freedom from materiality, bondage of any sort, will be emphasized at Christian Science church services Sunday.

Highlighting the Scriptural selections from the Lesson-Sermon on the subject "Reality" will be this passage: "The night is far spent, the day is at hand: let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armour of light" (Rom. 13:12).

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy this citation will be read: "Perfection underlies reality. Without perfection, nothing is wholly real. All things will continue to disappear, until perfection appears and reality is reached" (p. 353).

WRAP-UP

A NEW CITY CLERK may be appointed at a Monday meeting of the City Council. Mayor Ebon Whittlesey has put out a call for a special meeting at 5:00 p.m., at which time, presumably, the resignation of L. D. Rose will have taken effect.

THE USE OF PRIVATE HOMES for offices and studios of professional people may be restricted solely to "teachers of the arts" having not more than two pupils, if a recommendation adopted by the Planning Commission yesterday is converted into law by the City Council. Doctors, dentists, lawyers, architects may now use not more than two rooms in their own homes as offices, but the Commission report would eliminate this privilege for them. At least one person, Dr. James E. Gilman, has already promised a fight against any law which would force him to relocate his practice, now conducted at his home on Monte Verde street south of 9th avenue.

SPORTS

post. Not like the Griffith-Paret fight where once more the referee permitted the winner to batter a helpless opponent. Paret had his back turned during most of that punishment.

The Moore-Ramos death was an accident; it is so stated. A man does not suffer injuries to the base of his brain unless he is struck there. There is no evidence of rabbit punching in the recent fatal fight. But the politicians will leap on the "Ban the Boxing" wagon and make capital of Moore's unfortunate demise.

Men will fight and blood will be let as long as there are men and blood. Cain and Abel had it out. The Greeks invented the cestus to insure the last bit of excitement in their games. Moore died as he lived, but without boxing to insure the financial future of his wife and family, and with Moore's unharnessed potential for destruction, it could have been much worse all around.

College Board

(Continued from Page One) intelligently and objectively find an acceptable compromise, it may go far toward removing the embarrassing image of a cut-and-thrust street brawl among a group of professional people, who teach that such extreme of conduct are deplorable, but who frequently engage in them with a hearty intensity that must disconcert their pupils.

Cliff Dwellers...

Late this morning, Chairman Fred Keeble called a special meeting for Saturday to consider amendments to the plans, and Comstock official James Pruitt was preparing a letter appealing the decision to the City Council on 3-April, just in case the amendments still were not acceptable.

"Good morning," is one of them, and we all use it with flagrant disregard for the facts of our environmental circumstances which, often as not, clearly show the morning to be unutterably lousy.

"How are you?" is another question, which is not only trite but impertinent. We don't ever expect to have anyone tell us the truth, and when they do we are not only bored and impatient, we are nonplussed.

I recall aiming this greeting at Fred Hollenbeck one morning. He stopped, looked at me uncertainly, then said with a note of bewilderment, "Gosh, I don't know."

The directness of his unpremeditated response shook both of us quite a bit and we parted uncomfortably, almost at once.

I have been watching him closely of late, and he appears to be fine; but I have hesitated to inquire further along these lines, and he has offered me no added enlightenment. We manage to talk about stocks with a fair degree of poise, but we avoid health problems since our mutual transgression of the Rule of Triviality.

"That's what I always say" is, however, something of a monument. It is about the most absurd rejoinder imaginable to a statement with which we agree. It absolutely devastates the intelligence by the audacity of its inaccuracy, inconsistency and implausibility; yet it leaps to the lips of the compulsive social talker with incredible eagerness.

Let's see how it would work if three people, probably men, who were genuinely addicted to always saying what they say they always say, tried to hold a conversation.

One man approaches another, holds out his hand, and says "It all depends on how you look at it."

The other returns the hand shake, nods approvingly, and responds, "There's no substitute for brains."

They are joined by a third, who glances up from the pages of the Wall Street Journal and remarks, somewhat vaguely, "Carmel is primarily a residential community."

Since they never say anything else, they have to stop and ponder these things, each knowing that the other would only say the same thing over again if the conversation were pursued.

At that moment a stranger from outer space, perhaps someone from San Francisco, appears.

He asks the first man, "Can you direct me to a rest room?"

"It all depends on how you look at it," is the cautious response.

So the stranger turns uneasily to one of the others. "Pardon me, sir, can you direct me to a rest room?"

"Carmel is primarily a residential community" the man replies, hopefully.

At last the stranger turns in bewilderment to the third man, who has been listening intently and with some slight agitation. "I'm sorry. I may have interrupted your conversation. Permit me to introduce myself. I'm George Kremble. I'm from San Francisco; perhaps you've heard of it? Well, sir, I'm not having much success. You see, I'm not just gathering material for a story, I'm really intensely interested in knowing if there is somebody around this place who might direct me to a rest room."

The Carmelite stares thoughtfully into the distance for a moment, then draws the stranger aside and whispers urgently in his ear, "There's no substitute for brains."

The stranger draws back, a stunned expression on his face, then turns away and stumbles along the sidewalk, muttering to himself, "Win a few, lose a few. That's what I always say."
